Harmony Museum and the History of Harmony

Harmony is Butler County's most significant historic place and among the most historic in the region, attracting tourists for more than 200 years. The nine-site Harmony Museum, operated by Historic Harmony, an historical society and preservation advocate founded in 1943 interprets the area's rich history offering guided tours at 1 and 2:30 p.m. daily except Mondays, Sundays and holidays.

The area's recorded history began when Virginia Maj. George Washington, only 21, visited a Delaware Indian village here during his 1753 - 54 mission to demand France withdraw from British territory. The French response was that the British should stay out of New France, resulting in the French and Indian War. Nearby, the first shot was fired at Washington by a French-allied Indian. It missed.

Harmony was founded at the end of 1804 by pacifist German Lutheran Separatists from the Stuttgart area of the Duchy of Württemberg who fled western European militarism and a state church they believed was corrupt. Seeking religious liberty and anticipating Christ's imminent return, they organized as the Harmony Society, adopted celibacy and became one of 19th century America's most successful communal groups. The Harmonists went on to found two more communities; all three are now National Historic Landmarks. Several dozen of their Harmony buildings survive. Most of the commune's 900-1,000 members resided in town; those involved in farming and herding returned to their town dwellings at night, a practice that remains common in rural Germany. There were also three outlying mills, each about a mile from Harmony. The Harmonists ultimately owned about 9,000 acres. The heart of Old Town Harmony, with some 50 principal structures, and the Harmony Society cemetery comprise a National Historic Landmark District designated in 1974, commemorating the Harmonists' exceptional contribution to national heritage and character.

The original Pittsburgh-Mercer-Erie Road ran through Harmony. The Harmonists' bridge over the Connoquenessing was the second constructed in Butler County. The road was a key section of the most critical U.S. military western supply route during the War of 1812, linking Pittsburgh with the Great Lakes region. Materials for construction of Oliver Hazard Perry's American fleet at Erie traveled this road, as did troops who camped at Harmony on their way to reinforce Erie's defense. Hundreds of area men joined military units during the war, but the Harmonists' rejection of military service put them in conflict with non-pacifist neighbors. Perry Highway, later designated U.S. 19, remained part of Harmony until 1936, when a new bridge took the route directly through and north from adjacent Zelenople.

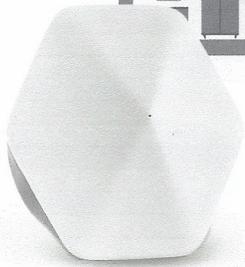

In 1815 the Harmony Society sold its property to "second founder" Abraham Ziegler, a blacksmith from eastern Pennsylvania's Lehigh County. Ziegler brought his and several other large Mennonite families to Harmony, with most settling on farms outside town. They also established the first Mennonite church west of the Alleghenies, now part of the Harmony Museum and designated as a National Historic Landmark in 2016. Ziegler occupied the Harmonist Langenbacher house on Harmony's diamond.

Harmony's Mennonite congregation faded away early in the 20th century, just as the Harmony Society was being dissolved at what is now Ambridge. The Harmony Institute for Young Ladies, a boarding school for girls, opened in 1817 and operated for about 10 years in the former Harmonist warehouse-granary-wine cellar that is now the main Harmony Museum building. The Harmony Society helped finance the school. In 1832 future songwriter Stephen Foster's family lost its home near Pittsburgh and relocated for a time to Harmony, where little Stephen attended school. Harmony's Charles Flowers was one of the state's last master makers of classic Pennsylvania black powder long rifles, ca. 1850-1897. The oil boom of the late 19th-early 20th centuries touched the Harmony area, and in the 21st century the area has gained a major role in natural gas production from Marcellus and Utica shale deposits.

Things to do at WeihnachtsMarkt

Weavers Cabin of Harmony

Visit the Weavers Cabin at 425 Mercer Street
(One block down from WeihnachtsMarkt, catty-corner from the Harmony Inn)

There you can see demonstrations of weaving and spinning, including demonstrations on a loom from the 1800s, during Christmas Market. Sheep and Angora goats will be on display (weather permitting) and there will be items for sale.

Visitors can weave a 'mug mat' for $3.

Ask about their monthly 'Make It and Take It' program where participants can make a scarf or rug and take it home the same day. Kids are welcome!

Harmony Museum Quilters

Enter Stewart Hall beside the entrance to Bottlebrush Gallery and go to the stage area of the hall to watch our quilters work as their old time predecessors did.
Their latest quilt, to be raffled off, will be on display, tickets are available at the booth

Have a Cup of Cheer!

Stop by the Gluhwein Booth, buy a souvenir mug and we will fill it with genuine German style hot mulled wine. Gluhwein, (red wine, apple cider and mulling spice), is a favorite in Germany at their traditional Christmas Markets and we have brought the original recipe to Harmony. If you prefer a nonalcoholic beverage, take the mug to the beverage booth, near the food booth, and they will fill it with apple cider, coffee, hot chocolate or tea.

Bottlebrush Gallery

Browse through Bottlebrush and be sure to stop in at the Christmas Room! We are sure you will enjoy the visit.

Four-time Grammy winner Eugene Friesen teams up with other noted musicians for a fresh look at music from a simpler time. Friesen chose the Harmony Museum's amazing stone-arched wine cellar to reimagine and record the music of the Harmony Society, the founders of Harmony. It's as if the spirituality of those long past laborers and stone cutters speaks through Friesen's cello, with a simple clarity so needed in the 21st century.

We Need Pane Relief

Present

Future

Harmony Museum has embarked on a restoration project that is bringing new beauty to Harmony and is restoring an important part of our history. We are replacing badly deteriorated, double-hung windows, with new windows that copy the original design of the Harmonists, the founders of Harmony.

These new windows use repurposed antique "wavy glass."

We need your help!!

The Wagner House behind the Information Booth is now complete (be sure to look it over!) but we still have the museum building to go.

Please make a donation today at the Information Booth or the Museum Shop to help make this important project happen.

Any amount is welcome but if you would like to become a sponsor, $1500 will cover the cost of a window and your name will be placed on a plaque in the museum.
